Itomance,
My Love dwelt in a Northern land,
A dim tower in a forest green
Was his, and for away the sand
And fray wash of the waves was seen
The woven forest boughs between.

And through the Northern summer night The stunget glowly died away. And herds of strange deer, silver-white, Came glowning through the forest gray, And fied like ghosts before the day.

And oft, that mouth, we watched the moon Wax great, and white o'er wood and lawn. And wane with waning of the June.—Till, like a brand for battle drawn, Sue fell, and fiamed in a wild dawn.

She foul, and ...

I know not if the forest green
Still girdles round that eastle gray;
I know not if the boughs between
The while doe't vanished ere the day;
The grass above my love is green;
His heart is colder than the clay.

DRESS GOODS FOR SPRING. Scotch Effects and Challies in New

Pattern Among the new dress goods are "matting" cloth and Scotch effects. The Scotch effects have the preference. They come in black and old rose, black and blue, brown and blue and blue and green. They are not too heavy, and make very swell tailor gowns. The "matting" is a heavy carded cloth, and is very wide; comes in brown and white, blue and tan, blue and mode and old story week; comes in grown and steel, blue and tran, blue and mode and old rose and green.

The new challies have a satin stripe in them. Some have a very narrow stripe, while others have the broad. Either are very fashionable, only a matter of preference. The cream challies have a satin stripe either narrow or wide, and the designs are morning clories, rose buds, carnations, lilies and narcissus in natural colors. The darker shades, as black, brown, green and blue, have rose buds, lilacs, ox oyes and honeysuckles. These also have the natural coloring. There are some Dresden patterns, but the larger have the preference. These challies can be had for 85 cents a yard; others without the satin stripe self for 50 cents a yard.

THE WOLKBASKET FAD.

THE WORKBASKET FAD. A Very Feminine Mania That Is Really

Useful.

Some women have a perfect mania for workbaskets and work bags, and a very convenient netion it is, too. It is so nice to have bags and baskets of various shapes and sizes for different kinds of work if one does all sorts of mendof work if one does all sorts of mending and darning and knitting and embroidering. There is the general mending basket of generous proportions, strong, and filled with peckets and pincusinons and needlebooks and button bags. Above all, button bags. The most convenient form of this useful little article is circular in shape, about five inches in diameter, made double with a circular bit of pastoboard an inch and a half in diameter, sewed between the two pieces of material, the edges of which are then turned in and sewed, a casing run far enough from sewed, a casing run far enough from the edge to leave a diminutive ruftle, a double drawing string added, and there you are.

For woolen knitting on two needles, such as underskirts, the nicest receptacle is a round basket of medium size, with a silk bag about ten or twelve inches long sewed to it. The same kind inches long sewed to it. The same kind of arrangement is convenient for daraging, with the addition of a housewife, containing flannel flaps for needles and crossed tapes to hold the cards of different colored darning cotton:

If you are doing a little fine drawn work it is nies to keep it neatly folded in a little flat covered basket, daintily lined and scented, and fitted with clastic straps for thimble and thread and flannel flaps for needles. A dainty bit of embroidery, hoops and all, will go in a silk bag made up on a silk-covered pasteboard foundation about four inches pasteboard foundation about four inches square. Some women use up all their odd bits of silk for bags of every description, and they say if it is a fad, it is a very useful one.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS,

With a fillet of beef any of the following named preparations of vegetables may be used as a garnish: Potatoes a la Parisienne, peas, stuffed onions, stuffed tomatoes, mushrooms, firied sweet potatoes and Brussels sprouts.

Veal and pork must be broiled slowly and for a long time. There should not be a trace of pink in the fibres when the meat is done. The chops should not be cut more than half an inch thick. They will be well done with twelve minutes'

When the yolks of eggs are used for when the yolds of eggs are used for thickening a soup or sauce, beat them well, then add a gill of cold liquid to every two yolks. Stir it into the hot liquid and stir all the time the dish is on the fire, which should never be more than a minute.

When using a spoon or whisk for beating, take long upward strokes, the more rapid the better. The spoon should touch the bottom of the bowl each time, and the motion must be each time, and the motion must be regular. Another way to beat is to use a circular motion. In this case the side of the spoon is kept closs to the side of the bowl. The spoon is moved rapidly in a circle, carrying with it a portion of the ingredients. This kind of beating can be applied only to a rather thick mixture. It is the best method of beating butter and sugar to a cream.

HOW PATTI RESTS

With Her Thermometer Marking 70 and Her Throat in Olled Velvet.

Mme. Patil-Nicolini, says the Chicago Record of the 18th, came in from the south yesterday with her Mexican hair-less dog, her husband and her retainers. Since her advent she has been resting. This is one of La Diva's hobbies. Mme. Patti gave explicit orders to her secre-tary that no one should be admitted to her presence. It is one of her old estab-lished rules, which has been carried out on nearly every one of her farewell tours, and she will see no one on the day that she slugs. Mino. Pattl, enshrined in her apartments, is as inaccessible as the car of the Russias. All cossible as the czar of the Russias. All cards of callers to the secretary, and he passes on them before there is hope. That secretary sat in the corridor of the Auditorium hotel last night. His brow is furrowed and he wears a perpetual seem. He looks as though he had more than the ordinary cares of man on his shoulders. THE LORD HIGH KEEPER.

He is the lord high keeper of the diva's thermometer. If it is allowed to soar one libit's breadth above or below the mark of 70, and she finds it out, his head is in danger. This is not by any means the least nor the greatest of his cares. He has to oversee the maid, who looks after the duodecime pet dog and a hundred and one other things that are the objects of Patti's whims. diva's thermometer. If it is allowed to

HER THROAT IN OILED VELVET, Last night the great singer retired at 8 o'clock-her usual hour. Every night when the hour of catalepsy approaches when the nour of catalepsy approaches Patti's throat is bound in oiled yelvet. The Mexican hairless dog and her Italian husband are bade good night and the diva seeks to slumber. At 10 o'clock she arises, and has her coftee at noon. She dines at 1 o'clock, and it is her custom to drive for awhile in the afternoon. On days that she sings her attendants dare not speak to Mme. Patti, and Signor Nicolini has as little to say as he is able. na he is able.

ADMITS THE SOFT IMPEACHMENT. Patti is as methodical as a professor of science. To her regular habits she of science. To her regular habits she attributes the remarkable preservation of her voice. She does not seek to conceal her age. "I am not ashamed that I have seen a half century," Mme. Patti is reported as saying. Despite her years she looks just as she did a decade and more age. Tifere is color in her cheeks and no semblance of a wrinkle there. Her eyes are bright and sparkling, and to see her filt up the hall of the Auditorium hotel closely voiled one would say that she was not over 20 and just from boarding school.

Enterprise and Economy

As an indication of what may be done in these troubled times a dross-maker has sent a circular letter to all her customers. In this she tells of her desire to retain her girls and her necessity of discharging them. She accordingly proposes, in order to retain them, if her customers will stand by her, for two months to make dresses at summer prices. The proposition is suggestive at this moment, when the shop windows are like the flowers that bloom in the spring for gayety and freshness. This relief to the over work of the preparatory watering place season of itself commends the enterprise.

MASSILLON.

Description of a Beautiful and Thrifty espondence of the Intelligencer.

Massillon, Onto, Jan. 22 .- While I have nothing to do and plenty of time in which to do'it, I have concluded to give you a pencil picture of this beautiful place. It is situated in Stark county, with Canton, eight miles distant, as the county seat. The Tuscarawas river, a beautiful stream, flows from north to south through the centre of the town, and is spanned by four steel bridges. It is not navigable at this point. The Ohio canal runs parallel with the river at this point, and extends from Cleveland to Cincinnati. Its principal commerce is coal, lumber and grain. The industries of Massillon are varied and numerous, glass houses, rolling mills, planing mills, foundries, agricultural works, railroad shops, coal mines, etc., etc.

The stand-pipe that forces water to all parts of the city is a gigantic structure. It is twenty-live feet in diameter and stands 150 feet high. It is built of steel plates one inch in thickness, and is a monument of strength and beauty combined. The water flows from the lakes into a reservoir, and is pumped from there into the stand-pipe. The pressure is so great that the city has no use for steamers. The reel and hose are all that is required here.

The new asylum for the insane is located here. They are at work on the foundations now. The Wheeling & Lake Erie has moved its shops to this place, and given Massillon quite a boom. The railroads running through here are the Fort Wayne, Cleveland, Lorain & Wheeling and Wheeling & Lake Erie. The population is 10,052 and about equally divided between the German and the native American.

The streets are wide and well laid out, are level or slightly rolling and the have nothing to do and plenty of time in which to do'it, I have concluded to and the native American.

The streets are wide and well laid out, are level or slightly rolling and the street paving is of fire brick, the same as in Wheeling. The sidewalks are freestone flar, and form beautiful white lines along all the principal streets. The residence portion of the city is simply beautiful. The houses on Prospect street are palatial and their grounds are the leveliest I have over seen. All the grandeur that wealth can procure is to be seen on this avenue. It is a panorama of beauty and leveliness. Such is Massillon.

Max wants but little here below.
But wants that little good.

Nine out of ton men when asking for a drink, will simply ask for "something good," and out of the nine there are not two who know when a drink of good whiskey, brandy, gin or rum is sold them. Few hotels or venders of liquors can assure their customers that the liquors set before them are absolutely pure and old. One tastes almost as good as the other; but if you want to be sure that you are buying only a pure liquor, we advise you to look at the bottle and see if the name of Max Klein is blown in the bottle, and his signature on the label, and if you see it there, you can bet your best dollar that you are getting a "straight" article.
